

Global Learning Semesters

Course Syllabus

Course: SOC-205 Mediterranean Societies

Department: Social Sciences

Host Institution: University of Nicosia, Nicosia, Cyprus

Course Summary
Course Code	Course Title	Recommended Credit Hours
SOC-205	Mediterranean Societies	3
Semester Offered	Contact Hours	Prerequisites
Please contact us	42-45	None
Department	Level of Course	Language of Instruction
Social Sciences	Lower Division	English

Course Description

This course explores a range of sociological issues with specific reference to societies that border the Mediterranean Sea. It tries to capture the complexities of these societies by providing a sociological focus on diverse but yet interrelated aspects of social and cultural life. The course is comparative in nature and examines both similarities and differences among Mediterranean societies. Its aim is to give students a comprehensive view of this part of the world through the lenses of social science.

Prerequisites

None